LegalZoom is an out-of-state company, not a law firm. In fact, the fine print on their website states: “LegalZoom cannot provide legal advice. ... The legal information contained on the site is not legal advice and is not guaranteed to be correct, complete or up-to-date.” Would you trust your Will to this company?

Your Will is a very important document. Computer-generated or hand-written Wills may not be valid under Georgia law, and may cost your family much more in legal fees than you would have spent on an attorney-prepared Will.

Consider these real cases, handled in our office:

- LegalZoom Will Void - a business executive in her 40’s used LegalZoom to prepare her own Will. She died suddenly. Unfortunately, the Will was not signed and witnessed correctly, and the Will was void under Georgia law.
- Homemade Will Leads to Expensive Litigation – an elderly couple purchased “fill-in-the-blank” Will forms, and wrote in wording which almost disinherited their intended beneficiaries. Other relatives claimed a share of the estate. Costly legal negotiations were necessary to reach a settlement.
